

WEEE Collection and Recycling Arrangements in Iceland

The Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment (WEEE) Directive is a European Directive which requires producers to make arrangements for the collection and recycling of WEEE. The Directive is transposed into national law by EU Member States. As a signatory to the EEA agreement, Iceland has an obligation to transpose the WEEE Directive.

Producer responsibility for the take-back of electrical and electronic equipment in Iceland is covered by Act 73/2008 which transposes the broad outlines of the WEEE Directive. Implementing regulation 1104/2008 was issued at the end of 2008. No amendments are currently planned.
